Application: Creative Marketing Manager, Consumer AI Marketing (German, English)

Dear Kristi Bajrami,

Consumer AI marketing brings together the areas I work across: creative strategy, integrated campaigns and making complex technology understandable. With 20+ years in the German market, I turn global brand stories into campaigns that feel made for Germany and lead creative, social and production partners from brief to launch.

My background spans Heimat, BBDO, DDB, Serviceplan and Jung von Matt, followed by independent creative and marketing work. I have developed campaigns for Deutsche Telekom, BMW, Volkswagen, Mercedes-Benz, Allianz and PlayStation®. My work includes integrated launch programmes across digital, social, events and print, as well as campaign adaptation and launch activities across DACH for Volkswagen.

I work directly with marketing leadership, translate strategy into creative briefs and steer agency and production teams through delivery. Alongside that campaign experience, I use AI daily and have built workflows with n8n, Claude, LLM APIs and generative image and video tools. Through workshops at the Handelskammer Hamburg, I have also made AI tangible for non-technical audiences—focusing on what it does for people rather than how it works.

What I would bring

Creative direction and local campaign adaptation grounded in long-term experience with German brands and agencies.

End-to-end campaign ownership, from strategy and concept to production and launch, with clear briefings and coordinated agency delivery.

Hands-on AI-supported content production, supported by fluent German and English and experience presenting to senior stakeholders.

I would welcome a conversation about how my experience in German-market campaigns, agency leadership and AI-supported creative production could contribute to Google's Consumer AI Marketing team.

Best regards
